INTRODUCTION

Information about health care facilities is critical in enabling people to access the public health care system more effectively. The existing information is inadequate and hence we felt the need to initiate efforts in this direction.

The public health care system in Mumbai city, comprising of the Brihanmumbai Municipal Corporation (BMC) hospitals, state and government run hospitals, maternity homes, health posts, dispensaries and other speciality hospitals carry responsibility of providing affordable and timely health care services to the city's population, especially the poor. An integral part of this provision must include providing complete knowledge of essential information about these services regarding the types of services available, their timing, fees etc. This information can ease the process of accessing timely and affordable public health care facilities.

Often the required treatment may be available in the nearby hospital, maternity home or dispensary, but lack of information regarding its availability acts as a barrier to accessing it. Even if people are aware of its availability, lack of knowledge about its timings, location etc. becomes a barrier to convenient access.

In conditions of widespread poverty where family earnings are barely adequate to meet two square meals, seeking affordable health care becomes a luxury. In such circumstances information regarding charges is crucial in order to avail affordable treatment and lessen the burden of treatment. Often, lack of such information can also contribute towards forcing people to turn to the private sector for seeking healthcare.

The idea to come out with the 'Directory of Public Healthcare Facilities in Mumbai' was conceived within the above context. We at CEHAT, in the process of dissemination of health information found that availability of such information was grossly inadequate and there was a crying need for comprehensive, precise and portable information on the public healthcare facilities. This idea then got consolidated in discussions with senior health officials of the BMC. The BMC's public health department agreed to support such an initiative by providing the necessary information. This helped us visit the hospitals, maternity homes and collected information based on a questionnaire.

The directory contains both general and specific information, including information on various services provided by the hospitals and maternity homes. The general information contains the addresses and phone numbers of the healthcare facilities, landmark, nearest railway station and BEST buses approaching the hospital, number of beds and visiting hours for patient's relatives.

The specific information consist of the case paper registration timings and window number, available specialities, super specialities with their Out Patient Department timings and window number, and information on Blood Bank, ambulance, hearse services and mortuary. A section on other services contains information on the grievance redressal system, benefits for the poor and cheap staying facilities close to the hospital.

This information is as obtained from the respective hospitals and maternity homes during October 2001- February 2002. An attempt has been made to provide reliable and authentic information but changes may have taken place during the period of collection and publishing process. We suggest that persons using this directory should verify the information accordingly.

At one level this directory would be most useful to laypersons who want to access the health care services provided by the government. Information regarding special facilities provided for disabled and senior citizens will help create a convenient path of approach for them to access the public health care services. It will also act as a guide for the dispensaries and Health Post doctors, Auxiliary Nurse Midwives (ANMs), Community Health Workers (CHWs), Non Government Organizations (NGO) and other related staff in their work, especially related to referrals.

Health Care needs to be viewed as a right and the public health care system is the means to achieve it through provision of all types of affordable health care facilities. It is hoped that the information regarding the facilities would increase the utilities and strengthen the public health care facilities. This is a small effort in that direction brought about by spreading awareness and providing essential information in order to not only build people's access but also create a convenient path for the same.

CEHAT

(Centre For Enquiry Into Health And Allied Themes)
Research Centre Of Anusandhan Trust

CEHAT, in Hindi means "Health". CEHAT, the research centre of Anusandhan Trust, stands for research, action, service and advocacy in health and allied themes. Socially relevant and rigorous academic health research and action at CEHAT is for the well being of the disadvantaged masses, for strengthening people's health movements and for realising right to health care. Its insti-tutional structure acts as an interface between progressive people's movements and academia.

CEHAT's objectives are to undertake socially relevant research and advocacy projects on various socio-political aspects of health; establish direct services and pro-programmes to demonstrate how health services can be made accessible equitably and ethically; disseminate information through databases and relevant publications, supported by a well-stocked and specialised library and a documentation centre.

We are a multi disciplinary team with training and experience in Medicine, Life Sciences, Economics, Social Sciences, Social Work, Journalism and Law. CEHAT's projects are based on its ideological commitments and priorities, and are focused on four broad themes, (1) Health Services and Financing (2) Health Legislation, Ethics and Patients' Rights, (3) Women's Health, (4) Investigation and Treatment of Psycho-Social Trauma. An increasing part of this work is being done collaboratively and in partnership with other organisations and institutions.
